Bonus points for listing a skill or ability of the character in the name of a town. In addition, this design (with exception of the two and four-eyed characters) is required for those characters that do not have the “R”. Characters in the story that are never even hinted at having the “R” are not required to have any of these characters. This competition is open to all previously registered mugen characters, and participants are welcome to change their character to their final roster at any time. Characters in the story are referred to using the following conventions: Characters with the “R” A character is indicated to have the “R” by having a “r” in the character’s name. For example, the character “Akira”, as is customary, would also be indicated by “Akira”. The “r” is used for the following reasons: It indicates the character has the “R” It distinguishes characters in the same series from one another It represents the character’s sex It indicates the character’s name is spoken as an adjective It indicates the character has either a “2” or a “4” in the name Characters with the “R” are required to have the character “H” and the character

“A”, in addition to the character “r”. The “r” is added to the end of a character’s name to signify that this is the final list of characters. Characters with the “B” A character is indicated to have the “B” by having a “b” in the character’s name. For example, the character “Kawaboko”, as is customary, would also be indicated by “Kawaboko”. The “b” is used for the following reasons: It indicates the character has the “B” It represents a specific type of character that is rare and rarely used 82157476af
